

"When will it stop raining?" said Willie. He looked out the window. Willie was having a bad day. He had not done his homework. His teacher had given him a zero. His friend Tom was going camping but had not asked Willie to go with him. Tom had asked Jerry. Then Willie broke the cookie jar. His sister had told Mother and she got mad. The worst thing was that it was raining. Willie could not ride his new bicycle.

Willie called his new friend, Kim. He asked Kim to come over and play. Kim said he would have to wait for it to stop raining. "OK, I will see you when it stops raining," said Willie.

Later, Kim rode over on his bike. Kim was new at school. He was from China. He had straight black hair. He wore large, round glasses. Willie liked Kim. He was smart and funny.

The rain had stopped, so the two boys rode their bikes. Then they saw a rainbow. It was the biggest one they had ever seen. The sun was shining, and it made the rainbow glow in the clouds.

"I wonder what is at the end of the rainbow," said Willie. Kim said, "In my country they say all of your dreams are at the end of the rainbow." "I have heard that a pot of gold is at the end," said Willie. "Let's go and find out," said Kim. They rode their bikes as fast as they could.

Willie started thinking. What if a pot of gold were at the end of the rainbow? What would he do with it? He could buy sodas and candy for the whole school. Maybe finished homework was at the end of the rainbow. He would not have to do any more homework. It did not really matter what was at the end. Willie knew it must be something big. The rainbow had the most colors of any rainbow he had ever seen.

"We will have to wait for the next rainbow, I think," said Kim. "My mother will be looking for me. I will see you in school." "Bye-bye," said Willie.

That night Willie went to sleep early. He wondered what would be at the end of the rainbow. Willie hoped it would rain tomorrow.

| | |
|--|-----|
| "When will it stop raining?" said Willie. He looked out the | 11 |
| window. Willie was having a bad day. He had not done his | 23 |
| homework. His teacher had given him a zero. His friend Tom was | 35 |
| going camping but had not asked Willie to go with him. Tom had | 48 |
| asked Jerry. Then Willie broke the cookie jar. His sister had told | 60 |
| Mother and she got mad. The worst thing was that it was raining. | 73 |
| Willie could not ride his new bicycle. | 80 |
| Willie called his new friend, Kim. He asked Kim to come over | 92 |
| and play. Kim said he would have to wait for it to stop raining. "OK, I | 108 |
| will see you when it stops raining," said Willie. | 117 |
| Later, Kim rode over on his bike. Kim was new at school. He | 130 |
| was from China. He had straight black hair. He wore large, round | 142 |
| glasses. Willie liked Kim. He was smart and funny. | 151 |
| The rain had stopped, so the two boys rode their bikes. Then | 163 |
| they saw a rainbow. It was the biggest one they had ever seen. The | 177 |
| sun was shining, and it made the rainbow glow in the clouds. | 189 |
| "I wonder what is at the end of the rainbow," said Willie. Kim | 202 |
| said, "In my country they say all of your dreams are at the end of the | 218 |
| rainbow." "I have heard that a pot of gold is at the end," said Willie. | 233 |
| "Let's go and find out," said Kim. They rode their bikes as fast as they | 248 |
| could. | 249 |
| Willie started thinking. What if a pot of gold were at the end of | 263 |
| the rainbow? What would he do with it? He could buy sodas and | 276 |
| candy for the whole school. Maybe finished homework was at the end | 288 |
| of the rainbow. He would not have to do any more homework. It did | 302 |
| not really matter what was at the end. Willie knew it must be | 315 |

| | |
|---|-----|
| something big. The rainbow had the most colors of any rainbow he | 327 |
| had ever seen. | 330 |
| "We will have to wait for the next rainbow, I think," said Kim. | 343 |
| "My mother will be looking for me. I will see you in school." "Bye- | 357 |
| bye," said Willie. | 360 |
| That night Willie went to sleep early. He wondered what would | 371 |
| be at the end of the rainbow. Willie hoped it would rain tomorrow. | 384 |